EDWARDS BILL IS KILLED

One of Governor Harmon's Pet Measures—Inability of Democrats to Agree on Gerrymander Results in State Remaining Under Present Republican Apportionment — Telephone Interests Secure Passage of Utilities Bill to Legalize Mergers.

Columbus, O., June 1.—After five months spent in making laws for the state of Ohio, members of the Seventy-ninth general assembly today completed their labors, packed their grips and shook the dust of Columbus from their feet.

Expected difficulty in securing an agreement on the 1911 appropriation bill disappeared at the last moment when Senator Todd, who had been fighting an appropriation of $100,000 to continue the rebuilding of the penitentiary, yielded. He said he had been convinced an appropriation was necessary and consented to an allowance of $75,000.

Federal relations committees of the two branches were unable to agree on a congressional gerrymander bill, and as a result the state will continue on a Republican apportionment basis. The state, because of the landslide last November, has 16 Democratic and five Republican congressmen. A pending bill sought to provide 11 Democratic and 10 Republican districts.

A conference committee on the Edwards taxation measure, designed to put all local taxing business in the hands of county deputies, and the purpose of which was to get hundreds of thousands in personal property on the tax duplicate, failed to agree and the bill is dead. It was earnestly advocated by Governor Harmon. The senate angered the governor by emasculating the measure as it passed the house.

Agree on Utilities Bill.

Both branches agreed upon a public utilities bill which retains a large share of home rule for cities in the granting of franchises. Property "used and useful" and not stocks and bonds nor franchise value, is to be the basis for the fixing of rates. The fact that a utilities measure got through was due to activity of telephone men, who wanted authorization for mergers, which is accorded them in the bill passed.

The Kimble measure, designed to end election frauds, was agreed to in the house. The senate amended it so that newspapers are barred from offering criticism of candidates for public office. It is the house's understanding that the governor will veto this provision.

Both branches passed the Ratliff bill over the governor's veto. It provides for the immediate payment of legislators for next year's services.

The senate adopted resolutions providing 10 days' extra pay and mileage for attaches, an almost unprecedented action.

Conneau Reaches Rome

French Aviator Lands During Heavy Thunderstorm.

Rome, June 1.—Guns boomed as a signal that Lieutenant Conneau had been sighted. A moment later the aviator swooped down over the Vatican almost hidden in ink-black clouds. While lightning was flashing around the crowds below were almost blind from joy and awe. Conneau alighted magnificently to the Mont Cavalier aerodrome. He was assisted out of his machine by the mayor, military generals, civic dignitaries and members of the clergy stood around him an opportunity to examine the airplane.

Attorneys Differ Much In Bribery Case

Turner Declares Nye, Not Crawford, on Trial.

Columbus, O., June 1.—Prosecuting Attorney Turner, in addressing the jury in the case of Representative Nye, declared that the testimony of State Printer Crawford that Dr. Nye had solicited a bribe of $500 from him stood uncontradicted. The effort to impeach Crawford's testimony, he said, had been unsuccessful. The motive of Dr. Nye in approaching Crawford, he declared, had been established by evidence concerning other solicitations of bribes. Referring to the considerable testimony offered to impeach Crawford, the prosecutor asserted that it was Dr. Nye not Crawford who was being tried.

Attorney Conrad J. Matten of Dayton, speaking for the defense, declared that the assertion of Crawford that a bribe had been solicited from him was not corroborated.

Gentleman Burglar Operates With Impunity

Kid Glove Burglar Defies Army of New Jersey Sleuths.

New York, June 1.—The very latest thing in burglars—a kid glove cracksmen who writes letters to the police scoffing at the finger print specialists—completed his thirty-fifth robbery and escaped through a veritable hedge of detectives without one of them getting so much as a glimpse of his coat tails.

Thirty precinct and headquarters detectives ambushed in the Bergen section of Jersey City, the so-called millionaire district of Hudson county, nearly got the baffling young burglar. He broke into two houses in their very midst and four alert sleuths heard him smash the window of one of the houses he entered. Fourteen men with revolvers in their hands rushed to this house, completely surrounding it, but they got not even a glimpse of the burglar. The police of Jersey City have been standing on their heads for three months trying to capture him.

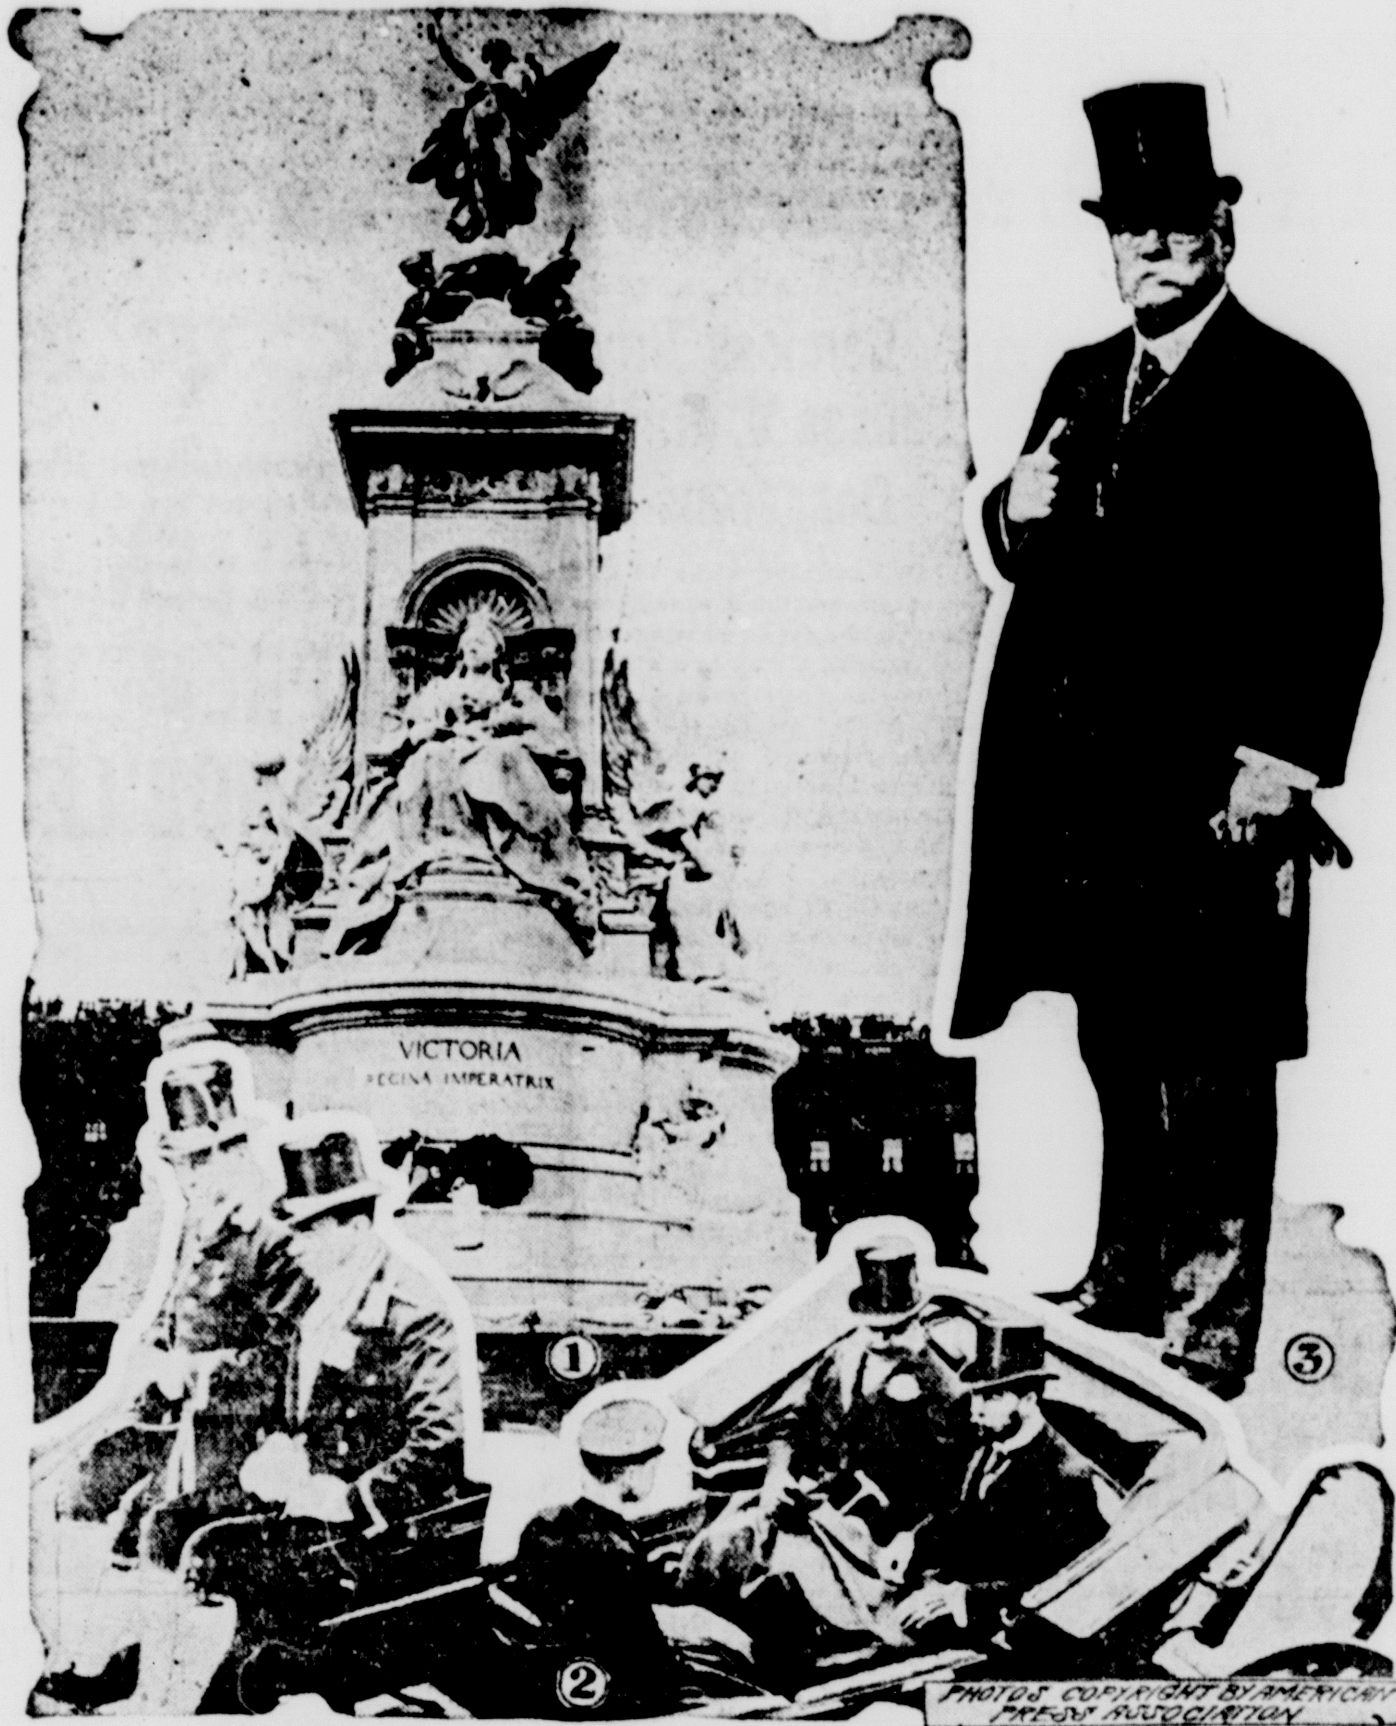

Ada Trouble Settled.

Ada, O., June 1.—Isador Roth and Chester Rowe, two of the students suspended for engaging in a college row, were reinstated. Roth, whose home is in Erie, Pa., would have lost $60,000 left him by his father had he failed to graduate with his class. President Smith stated he wished to be fair with the boys and at the same time he hoped to maintain the high standard of the school.

PROPERTY LOSS IS $1,000,000

Cleveland and Lorain Suffer Greatest Damage—In Addition to Fishermen Who Were Drowned When Frail Craft Capsized, Many Persons Are Reported Missing—Trees in Forest City Uprooted, Glass Windows Shattered and Shipping Damaged.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—For five minutes the wind tore through northern Ohio, leaving death and destruction in its wake. Ten are dead, many missing and scores injured, while the property loss will easily reach $1,000,000. Shipping in the Cleveland harbor was scattered, buildings shaken and giant trees twisted from their roots.

Seven were drowned in Lake Erie off the Cleveland shore, as the storm caught fishermen unawares and imperiled the lives of yachtsmen and other people on the water. Three were drowned at Lorain, while more are missing both there and at Cleveland.

No Block Escaped. Not one block of the city missed its mark of the wrecking gale. Showers of glass from broken windows splintered on the sidewalks, and the boughs of trees were snapped. Long sections of Euclid avenue were swept. This street, more than any other, gave Cleveland the name of Forest City, and was piled high with fallen tree trunks. Trees were uprooted in parks and avenues.

Most of those who were drowned were fishing from small boats on the lake when the storm broke. They were unable to get to the shore in time and their boats were swamped by the huge waves. Lifesavers and boatmen made several daring rescues.

Six Lives Lost in Thunderstorm at the Epsom Downs Track

Storm, Which Broke Immediately After the Big Race Had Been Finished, Was the Most Violent in Years.

SUN STAR WINS BIG RACE

Joel Crowd, After Years of Striving, Land a Winner and Relieve Bookies of Half a Million in Cash—Was One of Heaviest Betting Favorites That Ever Landed Historic Racing Event—Lord Derby's Steadfast Comes in Second.

London, June 1.—In a terrific storm and downpour which ended Derby day at Epsom Downs, six persons lost their lives. Immediately after the finish of the last race came a thunderstorm such as is rarely seen in England. The king and many society leaders had already left, but there were thousands of persons who were caught in the terrific downpour of rain and hail. People for the most part were on the 20 stands, and there began a scrambling to reach carriages. It was a tangled rush in which many narrowly escaped injury. The tropical thunder and lightning increased the confusion. Beautifully groomed men and women were drenched until they looked like scarecrows. Umbrellas and waterproofs were as well as if they were made of gauze. The women waded ankle deep in puddles to reach vehicles and trains. They were compelled to abandon their motors because the rain put them out of business and to return to London by train.

Sun Star, owned by J. B. Joel, and excellently piloted by G. Stern, won the Derby. He was the favorite in the betting. Lord Derby's Steadfast was second and Captain Forester's Royal Tender third. There were 26 starters.

Bookies Hard Hit. As winner of the 2,000 guineas at Newmarket six weeks ago Sun Star displayed his real form, and this was responsible for him starting one of the heaviest betting favorites that ever captured the big race. The Joel party, after years of trying, finally won a Derby, and they took nearly half a million dollars away from the bookmakers as a result.

The race was worth $32,500 to the winner, $2,000 to the second and $1,000 to the third horse.

Senate Agrees To Vote

Washington, June 1.—By unanimous consent the senate finance committee agreed to vote in common next Wednesday afternoon upon a report of the Canadian reciprocity bill. The present attitude of a majority of the committee is to report the bill without recommendation and let the fight be carried to the floor.

Arrested For Shortage. Herbst, O., June 1.—Frank Garr of this city is under arrest charged with appropriating $500 to his own use. As postmaster of this place the man is accused of using money which did not belong to him. He made good the shortage, but that didn't save him from arrest by the authorities who investigated the case.

BARBER CHAS. BRYANT LANDED BY THE POLICE ON BOOTLEGGING CHARGE

Authorities Claim That Accused Man Had Given an Order to Two Prominent Young Farmers for a Case of Beer and Upon Which They Secured the "Goods"—Arrest Made at Bryant's Home.

Strong Evidence Claimed to be in Possession of Prosecution.

Still another sensation was sprung in bootlegging circles late last night, when Charles A. Bryant, proprietor of the Bryant Barber Shop on Fayette street, was arrested for bootlegging, and four charges placed against him, that of furnishing, giving away and selling liquor contrary to law, and keeping a place where intoxicating liquors were sold as a beverage.

Bryant was arrested at his residence, 1056 East Temple street, in company with Wilbur Thornton, a prominent farmer of northwest of this city, and Jim Hodge, also of the same neighborhood, but so far no charges have been placed against Thornton and Hodge, but further developments may take place. The arrests were made about ten o'clock.

The trio were keeping company with a case of beer which Thornton and Hodge claim was shipped to Bryant, and which they got at the express office upon an order given them by Bryant. According to their statement they went to his shop and were wanting beer, and were informed that Bryant had a case ordered.

The order was given to Thornton and Hodge to take possession of the beer, and this they did, placing it on their auto and making a short drive before going to the Bryant home. A number of the bottles had been emptied before the police arrived upon the scene and took possession of men and beer.

Chief Devaney had noticed certain suspicious actions during the evening, and assigned Haggard and Bell the job of bringing in the men. Everything moved as he had anticipated, and Bell and Haggard crept up to the Bryant residence, one from the front and the other from the rear, and pounced upon the men in the backyard before they were aware that the police were present. There was no chance of escape, and the much surprised trio were taken to the Mayor's office and Mayor Allen summoned. Written statements were secured from Hodge and Thornton and they were allowed to go for the time being.

Bryant was thrown in jail where he remained until this morning when arrangements were made for bond, and he was given his freedom.

The police state that they have had Bryant under surveillance for some time. Bryant was released Thursday afternoon on bond of $250 and his trial set for Monday at one p. m.

over a year, but he has always eluded them. Time and again the house has been watched, and men have been seen to leave the premises. Upon one occasion Chief Devaney fired two shots to stop two persons who left the premises late at night, but they took to their heels and vanished.

The authorities are of the opinion that they have a strong case against Bryant, and it is hinted that much information not given out has been obtained that is very damaging in the case.

Careless Driver Causes V. R. McCoy Dangerous Fall

This morning while V. R. McCoy, proprietor of the Arcade livery stable was in the act of starting out on his motorcycle, a man in a spring wagon turned abruptly across his path, and Mr. McCoy struck the end of one shaft, breaking it off, and was thrown heavily to the street, barely missing the Larrimer laundry wagon which was hitched in front of the laundry.

Outside of some bad bruises, Mr. McCoy escaped uninjured. The man who caused the accident drove onward without stopping.

ALLEN WINS CASE SUPREME COURT HOLDS AUTOMOBILE LAW IS VALID

The Supreme Court of Ohio on Tuesday handed down a decision in the case of Frank M. Allen vs. T. T. Smith, which is of special importance to the parties interested and to automobile owners throughout the whole state.

Mr. Allen, a resident of this county brought an action against T. T. Smith, an automobile owner, and a resident of Highland county, in the courts of this, Fayette county, seeking to recover damages on account of injuries sustained by him, Allen, by reason of the horse which he was driving taking fright at the automobile of Smith, which, Allen says, was driven carelessly and at a high and dangerous rate of speed.

Allen was badly injured in the accident which occurred on the Leesburg pike about 3 miles west of this city some two years ago.

The action was brought in this county where the injury occurred, notwithstanding Smith was a resident of Highland county, by virtue of that section of the automobile act which provides that suit may be brought by a person injured in the county where the injury is sustained.

Smith filed a demurrer to the petition, claiming, in substance, that that section of the automobile act was in conflict with the uniformity clause of the constitution and therefore invalid.

The case was argued at length in the Common Pleas court by Judge Wilson, of Hillsboro, for Mr. Smith, and John Logan of this city representing Mr. Allen. The Common Pleas court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the petition at Allen's cost holding that that portion of the law was void because unconstitutional.

Allen then prosecuted error to the Circuit Court and that court affirmed the decision of the Common Pleas court.

Error was then prosecuted to the Supreme court by Allen, seeking to reverse the judgments of the lower courts, and that court on Tuesday held the law valid and reversed the judgments of both lower courts remanding the case for trial.

There has been a great deal of interest manifested all over the state in the case from the start, because on the final outcome so much to automobile owners and drivers depended.

The victory is a pronounced one against the automobile owners and means much to persons who suffer from reckless driving enabling them to obtain redress without the inconvenience, delay and expense incident to following the offending owner or driver into the county of his residence, which often is in a distant part of the state from the place where the accident occurred.

"Chub" Miller, who nearly met death while going at break-neck speed on his motorcycle Tuesday evening near Austin, is able to be at work again today, and it is believed no serious results will follow.

Miller has the skin broken on his right ear where his ear grazed a sharp snag some three inches in diameter, which protruded from a tree he passed in his downward flight, and which, if it had been two inches longer, would have penetrated the eye socket and split his head open.

Farmer Injured

Last Monday morning James Mortar, a farmer residing on the Bloomington and New Holland pike about four miles north of this city sustained some serious injuries as the result of a runaway.

Mr. Mortar was ploughing and he had stopped to fix some part of the harness, and while on the ground in front of the planter and between the horses, the team ran away, the heavy plow striking Mr. Mortar on the head and shoulder inflicting two deep cuts on the head and dislocating his right shoulder.

Escape from a worse injury Mr. Mortar deems himself fortunate. Dr. W. E. Ireland was summoned and attended the injured man.

Cy Bainter Again Fined Found Beastly Drunk Ordered to Leave City

Cy Bainter, the old offender, was picked up on East street Tuesday night about nine o'clock, and hauled to the county jail, not being in a condition to use his underpinning. He aroused enough to bid the officers good night before falling into a deep sleep again.

Wednesday Bainter was conducted before Mayor Allen and given a suspended sentence of $5 and costs, providing he stays out of the city. Cy promised faithful observance of this order, and left at once.

His good behavior was interrupted upon this occasion by a trip to Columbus, where he could not withstand the temptation to indulge in one or two more glasses too many, and when found he was stretched out on the flat of his back, using the embankment for a pillow.

Big Automobile Stuck in Creek

Disregarding the warning that automobiles could not cross the ford on Rattlesnake creek where the bridge is out on the Wilmington pike, a big touring car tried the ford a few days ago, and came to a dead stop in the middle of the stream, much to the annoyance of the occupants, who had no way of getting out except to wade.

A team of horses was attached to the car and it was pulled to the bank to the relief of the owner. Autoists are cautioned against using the Wilmington pike until the new bridge is constructed. The water at the ford is too deep to allow the cars to cross.

BARBER CHAS. BRYANT LANDED BY THE POLICE ON BOOTLEGGING CHARGE

Authorities Claim That Accused Man Had Given an Order to Two Prominent Young Farmers for a Case of Beer and Upon Which They Secured the "Goods"—Arrest Made at Bryant's Home.

Strong Evidence Claimed to be in Possession of Prosecution.

Still another sensation was sprung in bootlegging circles late last night, when Charles A. Bryant, proprietor of the Bryant Barber Shop on Fayette street, was arrested for bootlegging, and four charges placed against him, that of furnishing, giving away and selling liquor contrary to law, and keeping a place where intoxicating liquors were sold as a beverage.

Bryant was arrested at his residence, 1056 East Temple street, in company with Wilbur Thornton, a prominent farmer of northwest of this city, and Jim Hodge, also of the same neighborhood, but so far no charges have been placed against Thornton and Hodge, but further developments may take place. The arrests were made about ten o'clock.

The trio were keeping company with a case of beer which Thornton and Hodge claim was shipped to Bryant, and which they got at the express office upon an order given them by Bryant. According to their statement they went to his shop and were wanting beer, and were informed that Bryant had a case ordered.

The order was given to Thornton and Hodge to take possession of the beer, and this they did, placing it on their auto and making a short drive before going to the Bryant home. A number of the bottles had been emptied before the police arrived upon the scene and took possession of men and beer.

Chief Devaney had noticed certain suspicious actions during the evening, and assigned Haggard and Bell the job of bringing in the men. Everything moved as he had anticipated, and Bell and Haggard crept up to the Bryant residence, one from the front and the other from the rear, and pounced upon the men in the backyard before they were aware that the police were present. There was no chance of escape, and the much surprised trio were taken to the Mayor's office and Mayor Allen summoned. Written statements were secured from Hodge and Thornton and they were allowed to go for the time being.

Bryant was thrown in jail where he remained until this morning when arrangements were made for bond, and he was given his freedom.

The police state that they have had Bryant under surveillance from the time he was released Thursday afternoon on bond of $250 and his trial set for Monday at one p. m.

over a year, but he has always eluded them. Time and again the house has been watched, and men have been seen to leave the premises. Upon one occasion Chief Devaney fired two shots to stop two persons who left the premises late at night, but they took to their heels and vanished.

The authorities are of the opinion that they have a strong case against Bryant, and it is hinted that much information not given out has been obtained that is very damaging in the case.

Careless Driver Causes V. R. McCoy Dangerous Fall

This morning while V. R. McCoy, proprietor of the Arcade livery stable was in the act of starting out on his motorcycle, a man in a spring wagon turned abruptly across his path, and Mr. McCoy struck the end of one shaft, breaking it off, and was thrown heavily to the street, barely missing the Larrimer laundry wagon which was hitched in front of the laundry.

Outside of some bad bruises, Mr. McCoy escaped uninjured. The man who caused the accident drove onward without stopping.

ALLEN WINS CASE SUPREME COURT HOLDS AUTOMOBILE LAW IS VALID

The Supreme Court of Ohio on Tuesday handed down a decision in the case of Frank M. Allen vs. T. T. Smith, which is of special importance to the parties interested and to automobile owners throughout the whole state.

Mr. Allen, a resident of this county brought an action against T. T. Smith, an automobile owner, and a resident of Highland county, in the courts of this, Fayette county, seeking to recover damages on account of injuries sustained by him, Allen, by reason of the horse which he was driving taking fright at the automobile of Smith, which, Allen says, was driven carelessly and at a high and dangerous rate of speed.

Allen was badly injured in the accident which occurred on the Leesburg pike about 3 miles west of this city some two years ago.

The action was brought in this county where the injury occurred, notwithstanding Smith was a resident of Highland county, by virtue of that section of the automobile act which provides that suit may be brought by a person injured in the county where the injury is sustained.

Smith filed a demurrer to the petition, claiming, in substance, that that section of the automobile act was in conflict with the uniformity clause of the constitution and therefore invalid.

The case was argued at length in the Common Pleas court by Judge Wilson, of Hillsboro, for Mr. Smith, and John Logan of this city representing Mr. Allen. The Common Pleas court sustained the demurrer and dismissed the petition at Allen's cost holding that that portion of the law was void because unconstitutional.

Allen then prosecuted error to the Circuit Court and that court affirmed the decision of the Common Pleas court.

Error was then prosecuted to the Supreme court by Allen, seeking to reverse the judgments of the lower courts, and that court on Tuesday held the law valid and reversed the judgments of both lower courts remanding the case for trial.

There has been a great deal of interest manifested all over the state in the case from the start, because on the final outcome so much to automobile owners and drivers depended.

The victory is a pronounced one against the automobile owners and means much to persons who suffer from reckless driving enabling them to obtain redress without the inconvenience, delay and expense incident to following the offending owner or driver into the county of his residence, which often is in a distant part of the state from the place where the accident occurred.

Miller Recovering From Injury

"Chub" Miller, who nearly met death while going at break-neck speed on his motorcycle Tuesday evening near Austin, is able to be at work again today, and it is believed no serious results will follow.

Miller has the skin broken on his right ear where his ear grazed a sharp snag some three inches in diameter, which protruded from a tree he passed in his downward flight, and which, if it had been two inches longer, would have penetrated the eye socket and split his head open.

Farmer Injured

Last Monday morning James Mortar, a farmer residing on the Bloomington and New Holland pike about four miles north of this city sustained some serious injuries as the result of a runaway.

Mr. Mortar was ploughing and he had stopped to fix some part of the harness, and while on the ground in front of the planter and between the horses, the team ran away, the heavy plow striking Mr. Mortar on the head and shoulder inflicting two deep cuts on the head and dislocating his right shoulder.

Escape from a worse injury Mr. Mortar deems himself fortunate. Dr. W. E. Ireland was summoned and attended the injured man.

Cy Bainter Again Fined Found Beastly Drunk Ordered to Leave City

Cy Bainter, the old offender, was picked up on East street Tuesday night about nine o'clock, and hauled to the county jail, not being in a condition to use his underpinning. He aroused enough to bid the officers good night before falling into a deep sleep again.

Wednesday Bainter was conducted before Mayor Allen and given a suspended sentence of $5 and costs, providing he stays out of the city. Cy promised faithful observance of this order, and left at once.

His good behavior was interrupted upon this occasion by a trip to Columbus, where he could not withstand the temptation to indulge in one or two more glasses too many, and when found he was stretched out on the flat of his back, using the embankment for a pillow.

"Cedar Point, on Lake Erie," Where Important Conventions Will Be Held

CHOSEN by the Ohio State Bankers' association, the Ohio Teachers' association, the Ohio State Bar association and a number of other organizations as the scene of their respective annual conventions and by Glenn H. Curtiss, king of aviators, for further experiments in aviation extending through the summer, Cedar Point, on Lake Erie, far famed as the reunion grounds of the Ohio legislators and officials, will be in the limelight constantly between June 10 and Sept. 15, the opening and closing days respectively. The pictures show Curtiss arriving at Cedar Point Aug. 31, 1910, at the end of his record breaking flight over water from Cleveland, an everyday crowd on the famous board walk watching bathers in the surf, the parlor and staircase of the Breakers hotel, the largest on the great lakes, the steamer George A. ## Thirty-fifth Annual High School Commencement Concentrated in one bright scene Wednesday night at Grace church, the class of 1911, brought to a brilliant consummation their career in the Washington high school and left upon the thirty-fifth annual commencement the indelible imprint of class personnel of superlative excellence.

It was a class of brain and brawn—a class whose records in scholarships, whose prowess in athletics, overshadowed accessories.

Grace church held a splendid audience, there was much beauty of decoration; there was oratory and music, but while all these were tributary to the success of the commencement, the class of 1911 was the heart of it all.

Thirty-six manly boys and winsome girls in the unusual ratio of nineteen boys to seventeen girls, in all the collegiate dignity of the cap and gown, the class were seated in a double semi-circle across the stage with Supt. McClain and President Fess, of Antioch College, flanking the ends.

The present day vogue of a class address, with only the two highest honor pupils appearing in the salutatory and valedictory, met with general approval and the substituting of High school music for that of foreign talent added school spirit and local interest.

Miss Gladys Brakefield played a brilliant march in opening, after which Rev. Thos. W. Locke, of the M. E. church, gave the invocation.

Miss Minnie Roseboom presented "The Progress of the Century" in the salutatory. Dignified in bearing, direct and natural in manner, the young graduate covered a wide field in her discussion of the wonderful inventions, the discoveries of science, the investigations and research which have contributed to this remarkable age. She gave an excellent oration, with large amount of culled information and sat down amid resonant applause.

Supt. McClain introduced President S. D. Fess, formerly Prof. in Chicago University, now at the head of Antioch college, who delivered a magnificent class address, punctuated with the twentieth century spirit of accomplishment.

Miss Grace Post, the brilliant young student who had won highest honors in a class of thirty-six, delivered the valedictory, a splendid production, showing depth of thought in its subject matter and good literary style. Taking as her subject, "Influence of Literature."

After the valedictory the class rose to sing the beautiful class song, composed by Miss Emily Tanzey, class poetess.

With well chosen words of deserved praise to this class, with more than half having an average of above 90 per cent., Supt. Wm. McClain presented diplomas to the graduates.

Supt. McClain expressed his gratification over the school work of the past year, which has been even more successful than the last, and in which he has felt that he had the hearty co-operation of both teachers and patrons. He offered but one criticism—that parents do not visit the schools and keep more in touch with the school management.

The superintendent also announced that the four scholarships presented by O. W. U. of Delaware, had been won by Misses Grace Post, Minnie Roseboom, Helen Jones and Mr. Paul Jessing.

To Mr. Blessing's artistic skill was attributed the striking cover of the commencement program.

The High School Glee Club contributed three beautiful choruses, sung with excellent expression and finish during the program, the last chorus, "Daybreak," Elton Faing, was full of melodious harmonies and very difficult. Miss Helen Jones was the accompanist.

The popular High School Male quartette was given a persistent encore after "I would Like to Go Down South Once Mo'". Parks, and delighted the audience with a funny college song.

Miss Elizabeth Sheen, director of music, has done excellent work in her training and the choruses of the commencement enabled the audience to appreciate her conscientious efforts.

The entire commencement week with its delightful class day exercises and brilliant commencement, was attended with a success that is of the utmost gratification to the school management.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Take Care of Your Teeth.

Great care should be given to the selection of powders or pastes used for cleansing the teeth. In view of the fact that a woman's beauty may be marred if not made by her teeth, it is wise to pay attention to whatever is applied to them. There are many cleansing agents in which cuttlefish bone ground, is a part. Used once a week this would be harmless, but there is sufficient roughness in the material to wear the enamel if the former is applied every day. Be it understood that once the enamel, which is a thin shell covering the tooth structure and not the tooth itself, is injured, cracked or worn, trouble is bound to ensue. The tooth beneath the enamel is spongy, absorbing all liquids and crumbling to pain and destruction.

HEALTH HINT FOR TODAY.

Take Care of Your Teeth.

Great care should be given to the selection of powders or pastes used for cleansing the teeth. In view of the fact that a woman's beauty may be marred if not made by her teeth, it is wise to pay attention to whatever is applied to them. There are many cleansing agents in which cuttlefish bone, ground, is a part. Used once a week this would be harmless, but there is sufficient roughness in the material to wear the enamel if the former is applied every day. Be it understood that once the enamel, which is a thin shell covering the tooth structure and not the tooth itself, is injured, cracked or worn, trouble is bound to ensue. The tooth beneath the enamel is spongy, absorbing all liquids and crumbling to pain and destruction.

"Why, certainly," he assured her. "Well, just because I made a suggestion to him he threw all his tools in his wheelbarrow in an angry manner and went away without saying a word."

"Why, what had you said to make him act like that?" "I just asked him to plant a few nice bright dandelions in the lawn."—Buffalo Express.

LEGAL HOLIDAYS.

Some nations have too many holidays and others too few according to the opinion of the man who is forced or permitted, as the case may be, to take a day off from the business grind, providing he feels inclined to express his opinion.

The general impression is that this nation has not yet reached that state where observance of legal holidays has become a burden.

To the rushed to the limit American business man the legal holiday comes as a welcome oasis. Few, indeed, are the thrifty business men or laboring men who can afford to take a day off at the expense of their business or their daily wages.

This is a busy world and this country is a particularly busy spot in the world. It is a continual grind and drive to keep up with the procession, and a day off duty while the work of the world goes on means a decided advantage to the man who refuses to quit the job even though head and body cry out in distress for a rest.

The legal holiday presents really the only time when the man who is honestly striving for success may really rest in peace secure in the knowledge that his business competitors, with whom he daily strives to keep pace or surpass, are doing the same thing.

The security afforded the nervous, impulsive man, that the law has locked the banks and the business houses and compelled a halt long enough to permit body and mind to, in a measure, recuperate, is the greatest, and in fact to the busy man, the only real aid to rest.

The American business men do not dare to rest while there is work that should be or even can be done, and the result is an early and complete mental and physical collapse.

Without strict Sunday observance laws and legal holiday provisions, it is doubtful if the active business men would rest at all until the final rest came.

The legal holidays are a grand, good thing. They are good for the busy man and good for his family. After an enjoyable day spent with his loved ones, for whom he strives all the busy year, far removed from the mad race for dollars, and near to nature—generous nature—for a few consecutive hours, the busy man begins to feel like living, he gets a new lease of life and returns to the daily work refreshed and invigorated mentally and physically.

In all the business year we have now but five generally observed legal holidays, New Years, Decoration Day, Fourth of July, Thanksgiving Day and Christmas Day.

Washington's Birthday and Labor Day are not generally observed as yet, except in the larger cities, and the former comes at a time of year when out-of-door relaxation is impossible.

There should be more legal holidays, especially in the summer season, and, if possible, their observance so far as cessation of active business is concerned, made compulsory.

The busy man is not lazy and he is not seeking rest from work. It is for his good and really against his wish that the number of legal holidays should be increased.

It means longer life to the present generation of useful men and women and a generation for the future which will not be all nerve force and brain, but short lived.

More holidays seems to be the happiest solution of many vexing problems, which spring either directly or indirectly from overwork or intemperance in business.

ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE.

Some idea of the marvelous growth and the present rapid strides forward of that wonderful city, Spokane, may be gathered when it is known that more than $17,500,000 will be expended on municipal and railroad work and building operations in that city this year, and of this amount the city's share is approximately $6,000,000. The Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the Northern Pacific and the third division of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation companies have plans for work costing $6,500,000 and architects and contractors estimate that fully $5,000,000 will be invested in new buildings before the close of the year.

Municipal work in progress or confirmed amounts to $1,721,280 to date, and in addition there is $3,936,280 for bridges and buildings.

The grade separation plans in preparation by the engineering department of the Northern Pacific Railway company involve the expenditure of $3,750,000. It is expected this matter will be decided within the next 60 days. The Milwaukee and Harriman systems announce that about $3,000,000 will be invested in union station and terminal facilities in and near this city.

The influx of settlers into the farming and orchard districts immediately tributary to Spokane during the last six months will mean the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 for buildings and improvements, while from 7 to 10 times that amount is being invested in the country, called the Inland Empire, and as much more in the various towns and cities.

Bankers in Spokane and throughout the district have reports from growers, estimating that the grain, hay, root and fruit crop will be fully $150,000,000 in the Inland Empire this season.

All of which is good—the best—advertising matter and the knowledge of these facts should result in good to the "Inland Empire."

VACATION ANNOUNCEMENT.

We've started to plan our vacation. We've started discussing the trip. We shall take for our brief recreation. And what we shall put in the grip. Up to date, though, we haven't decided. The place unto which we shall speed; So far she has only confided. The number of gowns she will need.

We're going to go somewhere next summer.

The time and the place matter not. The trip will, of course, be a hummer. And start when the weather is hot. But all that I know of it so far. Is the warning she wants me to heed— That whether we do or don't go far. A lot of new dresses she'll need.

While I'd like to figure on places. And decide on the lake or the sea. She talks only of satins and laces. And gowns for an afternoon tea. There's plenty of time left for choosing. The month and the spot, she's decreed. But I have no time to be losing. In getting the gowns she will need.

An Emperor's Rebuke.

A diplomat in this country recalls a rebuke he heard the aged emperor of Austria administer to a snobbish noble who had lamented the scarcity in Vienna of personages exalted enough in rank to be cultivated as his acquaintances.

Mortgage Souls For Finery.

Two negro women residing in Alabama mortgaged themselves "heart, body and soul" to a local negro merchant for $20 worth of dry goods purchased by them. ## WOMAN AND WOE.

Old Age in India Invariably Blends the Two into One.

"I have seen women under a burning midday sun reaping in the fields," says a writer on India; "I have seen them at roadmaking in the streets of cities; I have seen them loading engines with coal at railway stations; I have seen them in long procession on the white roads of the plains carrying great burdens on their heads like a string of camels. And I have seen also in the eyes of every old woman whom I have encountered, every one of them, such misery, adversity and an aching bitterness as seemed to curse the very air of heaven. I have not seen one happy old woman in the whole country."

"Women follow through the village like a dog at the husband's heel. Maternity is no excuse for the task in the field and the duties of the house. They are servants without wages and without liberty to select another master. Before them is perpetual servitude, and if they are so abandoned by the gods as to reach old age their certain destiny is misery, dejection, friendliness and black despair. I never knew all the meaning of the word woe until I looked into the face of an old woman under an Asian sky."

"The women folk of the upper classes in India, speaking generally, are more the prisoners of their husbands than the women of the helot castes. They do not labor except in cooking and serving the meals of their husbands, but they are cut off from the world as completely as a nun; they do not even know, in many cases, the male relations of their husbands. They are little more than caged animals taught to do a few household tricks."—Chicago News.

EVER TRY GOING AWAY?
GREAT ANTICOTE FOR ILLS

IT'S a wide, wide world, and when you can't do anything else, you can go away. Going away has preserved many a friendship, saved from shipwreck many a matrimonial venture, and prevented many a case of assault and battery, not to say murder.

I consider going away to be my favorite beverage. To use the language of patent medicine correspondents, I can say that I have tried it for years, am never without it handy, and can truly recommend it to my suffering brethren and sisters.

The human soul is a "fiery particle," as Lord Byron says, in re Keats, and it needs room. It can't stand crowding. Scientists tell us (in one of those fairy stories that nowadays our credulity is fed on, in lieu of the miracle stories of the middle ages) that every atom, even in the solidest substance, as iron, is, relatively and in proportion to its size, as far removed from its companion atoms as one star in our heavens is distant from another; so that in your thumb nail are microscopic galaxies, and on each of the separate atoms dwell possibly sub-microscopic people with their problems of tariff reform and suffragets. I mention this simply to show that nature intended everything, even atoms, to have elbow room.

It is therefore natural in a boy or girl, with the coming of adolescence, to want to break off from the solidarity of the family and become a separate integer. Hence the desire to leave home. And as a general rule it is much better for the youth to get out of his father's business and city and circle and go somewhere to set up for himself. I say, as a general rule; naturally there are exceptions.

It is the younger sons of England, having no scope and favor at home, who have pushed out to the ends of the earth, and made that greater England that dominates the world; America, Australia, India, Egypt, and South Africa. In every race it is the colonizer who eventually saves it. So long as Greece and Rome threw out new sprouts of colonies they thrived; when the colonists' sons became rich and moved into the capital, national decay set in.

France is not so vigorous as Britain simply because an average Frenchman is governed by a centripetal instinct that pulls him to Paris, where the average Anglo-Saxon is centrifugal and loves to live on the edge of things.

You will find in the art of going away a wonderful antidote for many ills and intolerable situations. When young folks get married, for instance, a pretty sure way to brew trouble is to live with the old folk. No roof was ever big enough to cover two households. The best kind of a mother-in-law is the one who lives about a thousand miles off. Not that I believe the malignant jokes and carplings at the mother-in-law, but simply that she or any other human being is de trop to a young couple engaged in the most perilous, delicate, and easily spoiled experiment of life—to wit: the perfecting of the most serious and intimate relationship possible.

And, as time goes on, even man and wife can be too close. Every living woman needs a vacation once in awhile, and a vacation FROM her husband, not WITH him. She will return, thinking vastly more of him, if occasionally she can go away and find herself and take inventory and remember that she is a separate human unit. Also a husband needs to be isolated from time to time, if for no other reason, to realize how happy he was and how much he needs his wife. Many a permanent divorce might have been avoided if the parties had used temporary divorces in, at least, homeopathic doses.

The personality needs air. Solitude, in moderation, is essential to the growth of great ideas, strong principles, and a decided character. Of course we do not commend extremes, nor envy those hermit souls who habitually shun companionship. There are those who like to sleep in a room alone, eat alone, walk alone, play alone, and drink alone—all such we shall let alone. But these are not common.

The average human creature is gregarious. He craves family life, friendships, companionship in his work and fellowship in his hours of diversion. And my opinion is that said average man is prone to carry this too far and get a continual overdose of his fellowmen. The secret of many of his troubles is—too much folks. He leaves in the morning his ahouseful of relations, he rides to business in a trainful of passengers, and probably converses all the way with an acquaintance, he works in a clubful of fellows, at night he amuses himself in a theaterful of spectators, and sups in a restaurantful of people. Not an hour does he get to himself, when he can fold his hands, "loaf, and invite his soul."

Solitude Develops the Character. All this makes one ready, alert, skillful in business and quick in repartee, but the stronger and more substantial traits of human character which grow only in the open areas of solitude, have no chance to develop. There are such areas of beauty, the love of nature, fortitude, humility and poise, a finally religious feeling. Not one of these things, which make a man really and inwardly prepared against fate and strong against reverses of destiny, will grow in tramping and press and hurry crowds and affairs.

Did you ever try the silent hour? I mean the hour all to yourself and without even a book or newspaper. Try it for one week, see days in succession, and see what will do to you. Take your watch and time yourself, allowing an hour. Go into your private or your bedroom, or take a walk the lake, or creep off somewhere else alone, and just let your thinking machine run. Guard against planning and against all fermenting thoughts, or anything calculated to heat or absorb you.

Let your mind go, and watch. Forty impulses will start up, you will think of many things you ought to do or want to do and to do, but resist this incitation to do. Just remember and imagine a wonder, and little by little the buzz of the intellect will die down, and out of the mix and muddle of clamoring thoughts and the flutter of fugitive pictures there will emerge slowly and surely a knowledge of yourself, a little realization of what you are.

Why not? You were born alone. You will die alone. Every crisis of your life you will have to face alone. Why not get the habit? Why not get a little acquainted with that last person with whom you are likely to become acquainted—yourself. For, alas! most of us are afraid of our own company, the that of any other person; we are bored to death at self-companionship. We often complain that we have "nothing to do" and "nothing to read."

All great ideas have been nursed in silence. Moses spent forty years in the desert and wrote the book "Genesis," the sublime epic of the human race; Jesus spent forty days in the wilderness; Saul of Tarsus fled to Arabia and solitude before beginning his mission; Buddha learned wisdom in loneliness and saw the truth solitary under the tree; Mahomet had his cave apart; and the destiny of Napoleon might have been different if he had taken voluntarily his exile in the beginning of his career instead of being forced to the isolation of exile at St. Helena at the end.

But there are times when one can't go away. What then? Why then go as far away as you can. When one cannot go away at all then keep still. But when one can't keep still with honor; when one must speak? Then speak as little as possible. But when even the little that one must speak will certainly cause trouble, what then? Why then, the Lord have mercy on you.

THE OLD STORY

TURNING by train from a holiday trip. Simkins, a little bald man, seated himself down to read, but dropped off to sleep. On the rack was a ferocious crab in a bucket, and when Simkins went to sleep the crab crawled up, and finding things dull in the bucket started exploring.

By careful navigation, Mr. Crab reached the edge of the rack. Down he fell, alighting on Simkins' shoulder, and it grabbed the man's ear to steady itself. The passenger held his breath and waited for developments, but Simkins only shook his head and said:

"Let go, Sarah; I tell you I have been at the office all the evening!"

Idea.

A NAVAL FUNCTION.

The Kaiser's punctilious regard for the right thing in the right place is demonstrated in the following anecdote that comes from Berlin:

One afternoon he came to the crown prince, arrayed in the sumptuous uniform of an admiral, and said:

"I'd like you to come out with me. The crown prince, remarking with surprise this father's superb naval dress, asked:

"But where are you going?"

"To the aquarium," was the reply.

Proving Too Much.

An Irishman was once serving in a regiment in India. Not liking the climate, Pat tried to evolve a trick by which he could get home. Accordingly he went to the doctor and told him his eyesight was bad. The doctor looked at him for a while and then said:

"How can you prove to me that your eyesight is bad?"

Pat looked about the room and at last said: "Well, doctor, you see that nail on the wall?"

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"Well, then," replied Pat, "I can't."

—Chicago Tribune.

"John," said Mrs. Hibrau, "this article says that the Nebraska bad lands are full of wire grass. What is 'wire grass'?"

"'Wire grass,' my dear," answered John, "is a steel plant."

EVERYBODY'S
BIBLE QUESTION
Box

YOUR BIBLE QUESTIONS WILL BE ANSWERED IN THESE COLUMNS, OR BY MAIL IF SENT TO THE EDITOR OF THIS JOURNAL.

186.—If I do the best I know how, will not God consider me all right and take me to heaven when I die?

Answer.—If you were doing the best you knew how you would not have asked this question. On the contrary, you would realize that you know how to do better than you are doing. If you do to the very best of your ability you will get a great lesson as to your inability to do perfectly. Then, realizing that God cannot approve that which is imperfect and self condemned, you will be ready to pray, "God be merciful to me a sinner" (Luke xvii, 13). Then the Lord will reveal to you the fact that there is only one door of salvation—Christ. Then, still desiring peace with God, you will seek Christ and be found in him. The most God asks of anybody is that he do the best he can. We all need a Savior, for the reason, as St. Paul declares, "Ye cannot do the things that ye would" (Galatians v, 17). We cannot do perfectly because we are imperfect; we are imperfect because we were born in sin and "shapen in iniquity" (Psalm li, 5). The Jews, who were under the law covenant, tried to justify themselves before God by what they did, but wholly failed. In discussing this very question the Apostle points out that, the only hope for deliverance is through Christ Jesus (Rom. vii, 18-25).

There should be more legal holidays, especially in the summer season, and, if possible, their observance so far as cessation of active business is concerned, made compulsory.

The busy man is not lazy and he is not seeking rest from work. It is for his good and really against his wish that the number of legal holidays should be increased.

It means longer life to the present generation of useful men and women and a generation for the future which will not be all nerve force and brain, but short lived.

More holidays seems to be the happiest solution of many vexing problems, which spring either directly or indirectly from overwork or intemperance in business.

ALMOST UNBELIEVABLE.

Some idea of the marvelous growth and the present rapid strides forward of that wonderful city, Spokane, may be gathered when it is known that more than $17,500,000 will be expended on municipal and railroad work and building operations in that city this year, and of this amount the city's share is approximately $6,000,000. The Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound, the Northern Pacific and the third division of the Oregon-Washington Railroad & Navigation companies have plans for work costing $6,500,000 and architects and contractors estimate that fully $5,000,000 will be invested in new buildings before the close of the year.

Municipal work in progress or confirmed amounts to $1,721,280 to date, and in addition there is $3,936,280 for bridges and buildings.

The grade separation plans in preparation by the engineering department of the Northern Pacific Railway company involve the expenditure of $3,750,000. It is expected this matter will be decided within the next 60 days. The Milwaukee and Harriman systems announce that about $3,000,000 will be invested in union station and terminal facilities in and near this city.

The influx of settlers into the farming and orchard districts immediately tributary to Spokane during the last six months will mean the expenditure of more than $1,000,000 for buildings and improvements, while from 7 to 10 times that amount is being invested in the country, called the Inland Empire, and as much more in the various towns and cities.

Bankers in Spokane and throughout the district have reports from growers, estimating that the grain, hay, root and fruit crop will be fully $150,000,000 in the Inland Empire this season.

All of which is good—the best—advertising matter and the knowledge of these facts should result in good to the "Inland Empire."

VACATION ANNOUNCEMENT.

We've started to plan our vacation. We've started discussing the trip. We shall take for our brief recreation And what we shall put in the grip. Up to date, though, we haven't decided The place unto which we shall speed; So far she has only confided The number of gowns she will need.

We're going to go somewhere next summer. The time and the place matter not. The trip will, of course, be a hummer And start when the weather is hot. But all that I know of it so far Is the warning she wants me to heed— That whether we do or don't go far A lot of new dresses she'll need.

While I'd like to figure on places And decide on the lake or the sea, She talks only sating and laces And gowns for an afternoon tea. There's plenty of time left for choosing The month and the spot, she's decreed. But I have no time to be losing In getting the gowns she will need.

An Emperor's Rebuke.

A diplomat in this country recalls a rebuke he heard the aged emperor of Austria administer to a snobbish noble who had lamented the scarcity in Vienna of personages exalted enough in rank to be cultivated as his acquaintances.

"Were I like you, sir," replied the emperor, "in such anxious search for blood equals, I would find companions only among the dead Hapsburgs."

Mortgage Souls For Finery.

Two negro women residing in Alabama mortgaged themselves "heart, body and soul" to a local negro merchant for $20 worth of dry goods purchased by them. No other security is mentioned in the paper, which was filed in the clerk's office of the probate court. Although such a mortgage is not legally binding, all the parties to the contract appeared to be perfectly satisfied.—Case and Comment.

WOMAN AND WOE.

Old Age in India Invariably Blends the Two Into One.

"I have seen women under a burning midday sun reaping in the fields," says a writer on India. "I have seen them at roadmaking in the streets of cities; I have seen them loading engines with coal at railway stations; I have seen them in long procession on the white roads of the plains carrying great burdens on their heads like a string of camels. And I have seen also in the eyes of every old woman whom I have encountered, every one of them, such misery, adversity and an angry bitterness as seemed to curse the very air of heaven. I have not seen one happy old woman in the whole country."

"Women follow through the village like a dog at the husband's heel. Maternity is no excuse for the task in the field and the duties of the house. They are servants without wages and without liberty to select another master. Before them is perpetual servitude, and if they are so abandoned by the gods as to reach old age their certain destiny is misery, dejection, friendliness and black despair. I never knew all the meaning of the word woe until I looked into the face of an old woman under an Asian sky."

"The women folk of the upper classes in India, speaking generally, are more the prisoners of their husbands than the women of the helot castes. They do not labor except in cooking and serving the meals of their husbands, but they are cut off from the world as completely as a nun; they do not even know, in many cases, the male relations of their husbands. They are little more than caged animals taught to do a few household tricks."—Chicago News.

EVER TRY GOING AWAY?
GREAT ANTICOTE FOR ILLS

IT'S a wide, wide world, and when you can't do anything else, you can go away. Going away has preserved many a friendship, saved from shipwreck many a matrimonial venture, and prevented many a case of assault and battery, not to say murder.

I consider going away to be my favorite beverage. To use the language of patent medicine correspondents, I can say that I have tried it for years, am never without it handy, and can truly recommend it to my suffering brethren and sisters.

The human soul is a "fiery particle," as Lord Byron says, in re Keats, and it needs room. It can't stand crowding. Scientists tell us (in one of those fairy stories that nowadays our credulity is fed on, in lieu of the miracle stories of the middle ages) that every atom, even in the solidest substance, as iron, is, relatively and in proportion to its size, as far removed from its companion atoms as one star in our heavens is distant from another; so that in your thumb nail are microscopic galaxies, and on each of the separate atoms dwell possibly sub-microscopic people with their problems of tariff reform and suffragets. I mention this simply to show that nature intended everything, even atoms, to have elbow room.

It is therefore natural in a boy or girl, with the coming of adolescence, to want to break off from the solidarity of the family and become a separate integer. Hence the desire to leave home. And as a general rule it is much better for the youth to get out of his father's business and city and circle and go somewhere to get up for himself. I say, as a general rule; naturally there are exceptions.

It is the younger sons of England, having no scope and favor at home, who have pushed out to the ends of the earth, and made that greater England that dominates the world; America, Australia, India, Egypt, and South Africa. In every race it is the colonizer who eventually saves it. So long as Greece and Rome threw out new sprouts of colonies they thrived; when the colonists' sons became rich and moved into the capital, national decay set in.

France is not so vigorous as Britain simply because an average Frenchman is governed by a centripetal instinct that pulls him to Paris, where the average Anglo-Saxon is centrifugal and loves to live on the edge of things.

You will find in the art of going away a wonderful antidote for many ills and intolerable situations. When young folks get married, for instance, a pretty sure way to brew trouble is to live with the old folk. No roof was ever big enough to cover two households. The best kind of a mother-in-law is the one who lives about a thousand miles off. Not that I believe the malignant jokes and carplings at the mother-in-law, but simply that she or any other human being is de trop to a young couple engaged in the most perilous, delicate, and easily spoiled experiment of life—to wit: the perfecting of the most serious and intimate relationship possible.

And, as time goes on, even man and wife can be too close. Every living woman needs a vacation once in awhile, and a vacation FROM her husband, not WITH him. She will return, thinking vastly more of him, if occasionally she can go away and find herself and take inventory and remember that she is a separate human unit. Also a husband needs to be isolated from time to time, if for no other reason, to realize how happy he was and how much he needs his wife. Many a permanent divorce might have been avoided if the parties had used temporary divorces in, at least, homeopathic doses.

The personality needs air. Solitude, in moderation, is essential to the growth of great ideas, strong principles, and a decided character. Of course we do not commend extremes, nor envy those hermit souls who habitually shun companionship. There are those who like to sleep in a room alone, eat alone, walk alone, play alone, and drink alone—all such we shall let alone. But these are not common.

The average human creature is gregarious. He craves family life, friendships, companionship in his work and fellowship in his hours of diversion. And my opinion is that said average man is prone to carry this too far and get a continual overdose of his fellowmen. The secret of many of his troubles is—too much folks. He leaves in the morning his amuseful relations, he rides to business in a trainful of passengers, and probably converses all the way with an acquaintance, he works in an officeful of clerks, he lunches in a clubful of fellows, at night he amuses himself in a theaterful of spectators, and supe in a restaurantful of people. Not an hour does he get to himself, when he can fold his hands, loaf, and invite his soul.

Solitude Develops the Character. All this makes one ready, alert, skilful in business and quick in repartee, but the stronger and more substantial traits of human character which grow only in the open areas of solitude, have no chance to develop. There are such growths as wonder, the appreciation of beauty, the love of nature, fortitude, humility and poise, a finally religious feeling. Not one of these things, which make a man really and inwardly prepared against fate and strong against reverses of destiny, will grow in tramping and press and hurry crowds and affairs.

Did you ever try the silent hour and without even a book or newspaper. Try it for one week, one day in succession, and see what will do to you. Take your watch and time yourself, allowing a full hour. Go into your private or your bedroom, or take a walk the lake, or creep off somewhere else alone, and just let your thinking machine run. Guard against planning and against all ferment thoughts, or anything calculated heat or absorb you.

Let your mind go, and watch Forty impulses with start up, you will think of many things you ought to do or want to do and to do not but resist this inclination to do. Just remember and imagine a wonder, and little by little the buzz of the intellect will slow down, and out of the mix and clamor of fugitive pictures there will emerge slowly and dimly a little knowledge of yourself, a little realization of what you are.

Why not? You were born alone. You will die alone. Every great crisis of your life you will have to face alone. Why not get the habit? Why not get a little acquainted with that last person with whom you are likely to become acquainted—yourself. For, alas! most of us are more afraid of our own company than that of any other person; we are bored to death at self-companionship. We often complain that we have "nothing to do" and "nothing to read."

All great ideas have been nursed in silence. Moses spent forty years in the desert and wrote the book "Genesis," the sublimest epic of the human race; Jesus spent forty days in the wilderness; Saul of Tarsus fled to Arabia and solitude before beginning his mission; Buddha learned wisdom in loneliness and saw the truth solitary under the tree; Mahomet had his cave apart and the destiny of Napoleon might have been different if he had taken voluntarily his exile in the beginning of his career instead of being forced to the isolation of exile at St. Helena at the end.

But there are times when one can't go away. What then? Why then go as far away as you can. But when one cannot go away at all. Then keep still. But when one can't keep still with honor; when one must speak? Then speak as little as possible. But when even the little that one must speak will certainly cause trouble, what then? Why then, the Lord have mercy on you!

THE OLD STORY

Tired and dusty, a party were returning by train from a holiday trip. Simkins, a little bald man, seated himself down to read, but dropped off to sleep. On the rack was a vicious crab in a bucket, and when Simkins went to sleep the crab crawled up, and finding things dull in the bucket started exploring.

By careful navigation Mr. Crab reached the edge of the rack. Down he fell, alighting on Simkins's shoulder, and it grabbed the man's ear to steady itself. The passengers held their breath and waited for developments, but Simkins only shook his head and said:

"Let go, Sarah; I tell you I have been at the office all the evening!" Ideas.

A NAVAL FUNCTION.

The Kaiser's punctilious regard for the right thing in the right place is demonstrated in the following anecdote that comes from Berlin:

One afternoon he came to the crown prince, arrayed in the sumptuous uniform of an admiral, and said:

"I'd like you to come out with me. The crown prince, remarking with surprise his father's superb naval dress, asked:

"But where are you going?"

"To the aquarium," was the reply.

Proving Too Much.

An Irishman was once serving in a regiment in India. Not liking the climate, Pat tried to evolve a trick by which he could get home. Accordingly he went to the doctor and told him his eyesight was bad. The doctor looked at him for a while and then said:

"How can you prove to me that your eyesight is bad?"

Pat looked about the room and at last said: "Well, doctor, you see that nail on the wall?"

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"Well, then," replied Pat, "I can't."

Railroad Magnate Hill Announces Retirement

Designs Reason For $600,000.
UO Bond Issue.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—Official announcement was made from the general offices of the Great Northern railway of the issue of $600,000 in bonds, covering one of the biggest financial deals that has ever been made in the west. The biggest portion of the issue will take care of old bonds which have been issued by the company from year to year to cover extensions and improvements, but the other big slice makes provision for the taking over of the Burlington railroad.

The issue of bonds means the taking up of $330,000,000 of gold bonds of the Great Northern, including $22,400,000 in the bonds of the Burlington, for which the Great Northern is responsible. It is believed that by the issue the Great Northern is to take over the Burlington, divorcing the Northern Pacific from that road. It is thought this merger will be upheld in the courts, on the strength of the "reasonable trust" clause of the supreme court decision in the Standard Oil case.

"I am getting old and will quit the railroad business after a while. I want to leave the road in good financial shape so it can make all the improvements needed," is the way James J. Hill, chairman of the directors of the Great Northern, summed up his reasons for making the mortgage of $600,000,000 on the road.

the police, told a tale believed to reveal an extensive white slavery system conducted in this section of the Ohio valley for months, with Wheeling as its headquarters and all the surrounding territory contributing the girls.

The girl's home is at New Martinsville, W. Va. While working at a Moundsville glass factory she got a letter from a Wheeling woman, offering her a place as waitress in a restaurant. She went to the woman's address four months ago, she says, only to find that she was in a dive.

She escaped, she said, while the woman was absent for a few minutes and got across to the Ohio side of the river, where she fell exhausted. The girl declares that she was beaten daily when she rebelled against the woman's orders and was in fear of her life at all times. She says that other girls were entrapped by similar methods.

Promises To Prosecute

Wickersham Says He Will Try to Jail Trust Magnates.

Washington, June 1.—The prophecy that the recent opinions by the supreme court in the Standard Oil and tobacco cases would result in sweeping attempts to secure criminal conviction of violators of the Sherman anti-trust law was made by Attorney General Wickersham to the house committee on expenditures in the department of justice. The statement was evoked by a question of Chairman Beall, demanding to know why there had been no such criminal prosecutions thus far.

That he received about $20,000 as his share of a fee from the sugar trust for services rendered by Henry W. Taft, brother of the president, when he was a member of the law firm of Strong & Cadwalader, was admitted by Attorney General Wickersham on the witness stand before the committee.

Wickersham also said that while a member of that law firm he "advised the United States Steel corporation" on several occasions from 1905 to 1909.

Chicago, June 1.—Two baffling murder mysteries confront the police. Charles Reilly, 36, a union printer, left his home to go to a lodge. A well-dressed man about 35 years of age was found unconscious in a doorway in the heart of the loop district. He died in the county hospital, and physicians declare he was murdered. Papers in his pockets indicate that his name was "Michaelson," but the identification is incomplete.

Senator Says He Was Threatened

Washington, June 1.—Senator Pomeroy of Ohio is determined, he says, to press for criminal prosecution of individuals who have been convicted of violating the Sherman anti-trust law. The arrest of John D. Rockefeller is one of the possible consequences of Pomeroy's plan. He declares he has been covertly threatened with political assassination since he introduced his resolution concerning criminal prosecution a week ago.

Railroad Magnate Hill Announces Retirement

Designs Reason For $600,000,
USD Bond Issue.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—Official announcement was made from the general offices of the Great Northern railway of the issue of $600,000,000 in bonds, covering one of the biggest financial deals that has ever been made in the west. The biggest portion of the issue will take care of old bonds which have been issued by the company from year to year to cover extensions and improvement, but the other big slice makes provision for the taking over of the Burlington railroad.

The issue of bonds means the taking up of $330,000,000 of gold bonds of the Great Northern, including $22,400,000 in the bonds of the Burlington, for which the Great Northern is responsible. It is believed that by the issue the Great Northern is to take over the Burlington, divorcing the Northern Pacific from that road. It is thought this merger will be upheld in the courts, on the strength of the "reasonable trust" clause of the supreme court decision in the Standard Oil case.

"I am getting old and will quit the railroad business after a while. I want to leave the road in good financial shape so it can make all the improvements needed," is the way James J. Hill, chairman of the directors of the Great Northern, summed up his reasons for making the mortgage of $600,000,000 on the road.

The Story Is Told By Figures In Returns Made By County Assessors

Some Weird Contradiction Contained
When Comparison is Made With Other
Data Gathered Through Different Channels---Slight Increase is Made in Totals
Returned.

The statistics gathered by the assessors of personal property show a decided falling off in many instances, the total valuation being $4,118,304, or a gain of $195,475 over the total personal property valuation for 1910. This is in the face of a big increase in non-taxable bonds, $115,501 more being invested in bonds than in 1910, of a total non-taxable bond investment of $603,398.

The most startling of all the figures is the amount of money returned by the assessors, as being subject to check in the various banks of the county, that amount being $519,614 as compared with $2,662,148.07, as shown by the bank statements. This exhibits a discrepancy of $2,142,534.07, which represents the amount not returned by the depositors, and shows that only about one-fifth of the total amount deposited was returned by depositors.

That Washington is growing is shown by the increase in personal property of the city, $188,507 over last year, the total this year being $679,482 in Washington. The first ward made a gain of $37,201; second ward $53,252; third ward $31,591, and fourth ward, $66,465.

While the city went forward, the rural district seems to have fallen a step behind, if the figures can be relied upon as being absolutely correct. Jeffersonville made a gain in personal property of $1,728, while Bloomingburg shows a gain of $10,110.

Concord township lost $1210; Jasper, $8,303; Octa, $110; Jefferson, south, $21,285; White Oak, $2,785; Marion suffered the largest loss, $28,430; Paint, Upper, $13,565; New Holland, $345; Bloomingburg S. D., $2,385; Union, West, $19,541, and Wayne, $1,905.

Milledgeville School District shows a gain of $23,929, and the corporation $15,300, indicating that Milledgeville is stepping forward rapidly. Other gains are: Madison, $10,525; Green township, $27,640; Jeffersonville School District, $6,170.

A peculiar feature is the number of watches and pianos and organs returned. The number of watches is given as 884, or two less than the number of pianos and organs. Last year the number of watches was 906 and pianos and organs 869.

The report shows a decrease in horses of 1,177 since last year. A loss of 3,549 head of cattle; 132 mules; 1,159 hogs. A gain of 8,425 sheep is shown. Notwithstanding the increase in automobiles and other rigs, the number of vehicles has decreased 180—according to the report. Dogs have increased from 1560 to 1684. Only 22 dogs in the county have a value of more than one dollar each. The number of homes in the county probably reaches near the 4,000 mark.

A careful study of the foregoing figures, and a little deductoin is worth the while of everyone interested in Fayette county. Last year the gain in personal property over the previous year, was half a million dollars.

STARTLED THE BISHOP.

An Untimely Royal Letter and the Message It Conveyed.

One night at 3 o'clock the bishop of Orleans was roused by a royal courier who had in hot haste brought a dispatch from his majesty Louis XV. The bishop imagined that something terrible had happened. Tremblingly he opened the package and read:

"Monsieur the Bishop of Orleans—My daughters wish for some preserved Orleans quinces. Pray send some. If you have none I beg that you will."

In this part of the letter there was a drawing of a sedan chair, and underneath the chair the king's letter continued thus:

"Send immediately into your episcopal town and get them, and, monsieur the bishop, may God have you in his holy keeping. Louis."

Lower down on the page was this postscript:

"The sedan chair does not mean anything. It was drawn by my daughter on this sheet of paper, which I happened to find near me."

Greatly relieved, the bishop hurried a courier into Orleans, procured the preserves and sent them to his royal master—Thomas E. Watson in "The Story of France."

Value of New Ideas.

Some large business firms employ a man whose sole duty it is to read every trade journal, every technical paper or pamphlet and every magazine in order to get new ideas about the conduct of their business. Such information is laid each day before the heads of the various departments, who in turn pass it down the line to men under them and see that the new idea is tested. By this means each worker is kept in touch with what other men are doing in his particular line, and so his personal efficiency is increased. At most everything can be done in a manner a little better than the present way, and modern business demands to know and practice the best. Diogenes carried around a cup to drink water out of till one day he saw a dog lapping water with his tongue. He threw away his cup and afterward drank water out of the palm of his hand. He got from the dog a new idea.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Change of Name.

"Who can give a sentence using the word pendulum?" asked the teacher. Little Rachel's hand shot up. The teacher nodded encouragingly.

"Lightning was invented by Benjamin Franklin."—Everybody's.

Stronger Than Sympathy.

"I am glad to see, anyhow, that you sympathize with the under dog in this barbarous fight."

"Sympathize with 'im? Gosh, mister, all the money I've got is up on that dawg!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Globe Trotters Plus.

A number of tourists were recently looking down the crater of Vesuvius. An American gentleman said to his companion:

"That looks a good deal like the infernal regions."

An English lady, overhearing the remark, said to another:

"Good gracious, how these Americans do travel!"—Lippincott's.

A HUNGRY PYTHON.

The First Course of His Meat Got Him Into Serious Trouble.

In my travels I visited the jail at Thajet-Myo, in Burma. On the morning of my visit there had undoubtedly been an unusual occurrence. A python twenty-two feet long and twenty-eight inches in girth had entered the vegetable garden and crossed it to the fowl pen. Besides the fowls, there were some five ducks in the pen. Now, the front of the pen was fenced with diamond mesh galvanized wire netting of a strong type.

The snake could not resist a fat duck, so, putting its head and neck through the stout diamond frame, it seized and swallowed one. I have no doubt whatever that it would have "mopped up the bunch" inside the house, but that in adjusting No. 1 to make room for No. 2 it became aware of an uneasy feeling owing to the wire around its waist. Neither have I any doubt that in addition to becoming uneasy it became seriously alarmed.

Being now unable either to disgorge or to get away, it tore off the whole section of netting, 6 feet by 8, and returned with the necklache or waist band through the cabbage. Not unnaturally, I think, the sentry, seeing a 6 by 8 foot wire section of fencing marching through the cabbage patch without any visible means of support, gave the alarm and then opened fire.

The prison guard rushed out and also opened fire, and very shortly our hero lay dead in his frame. He was skinned and his skin cured and dressed in the jail, where they are noted for this kind of work.—Forest and Stream.

Ignorance.

Are Want Ad Tasks

They are such "usual tasks" for the want ads that it would be hard to find a rented house whose tenant did not find it through answering an ad—or an owned house whose purchase and sale did not originate in a classified ad.

If these facts are not significant to owners of property, no facts whatever would be.

The Story Is Told By Figures In Returns Made By County Assessors

Some Weird Contradiction Contained
When Comparison is Made With Other
Data Gathered Through Different Channels--Slight Increase is Made in Totals
Returned.

The statistics gathered by the assessors of personal property show a decided falling off in many instances, the total valuation being $4,118,304, or a gain of $195,475 over the total personal property valuation for 1910. This is in the face of a big increase in non-taxable bonds, $115,501 more being invested in bonds than in 1910, or a total non-taxable bond investment of $603,398.

The most startling of all the figures is the amount of money returned by the assessors, as being subject to check in the various banks of the county, that amount being $519,614 as compared with $2,662,148.07, as shown by the bank statements. This exhibits a discrepancy of $2,142,534.07, which represents the amount not returned by the depositors, and shows that only about one-fifth of the total amount deposited was returned by depositors.

That Washington is growing is shown by the increase in personal property of the city, $188,507 over last year, the total this year being $679,482 in Washington. The first ward made a gain of $37,201; second ward $53,252; third ward $31,591; and fourth ward, $66,465.

While the city went forward, the rural district seems to have fallen a step behind, if the figures can be relied upon as being absolutely correct. Jeffersonville made a gain in personal property of $1,728, while Bloomington shows a gain of $10,110.

Concord township lost $1210; Jasper, $8,303; Octa, $110; Jefferson, south, $21,285; White Oak, $2,785; Marion suffered the largest loss, $28,430; Paint, Upper, $13,565; New Holland, $345; Bloomington S. D., $2,385; Union, West, $19,541; and Wayne, $1,905.

Milledgeville School District shows a gain of $23,929, and the corporation $15,300, indicating that Milledgeville is stepping forward rapidly. Other gains are: Madison, $10,525; Green township, $27,640; Jeffersonville School District, $6,170.

A peculiar feature is the number of watches and pianos and organs returned. The number of watches is given as 884, or two less than the number of pianos and organs. Last year the number of watches was 906 and pianos and organs 869.

The report shows a decrease in horses of 1,177 since last year. A loss of 3,549 head of cattle; 132 mules; 1,159 hogs. A gain of 8,425 sheep is shown. Notwithstanding the increase in automobiles and other rigs, the number of vehicles has decreased 180—according to the report. Dogs have increased from 1560 to 1584. Only 22 dogs in the county have a value of more than one dollar each. The number of homes in the county probably reaches near the 4,000 mark.

A careful study of the foregoing figures, and a little deduction is worth the while of everyone interested in Fayette county. Last year the gain in personal property over the previous year, was half a million dollars.

A HUNGRY PYTHON.

The First Course of His Meat Got Him Into Serious Trouble.

In my travels I visited the jail at Thajet Myo, in Burma. On the morning of my visit there had undoubtedly been an unusual occurrence. A python twenty-two feet long and twenty-eight inches in girth had entered the vegetable garden and crossed it to the fowl pen. Besides the fowls, there were some five ducks in the pen. Now, the front of the pen was fenced with diamond mesh galvanized wire netting of a strong type.

The snake could not resist a fat duck, so, putting its head and neck through the stout diamond frame, it seized and swallowed one. I have no doubt whatever that it would have "mopped up the bunch" inside the house, but that in adjusting No. 1 to make room for No. 2 it became aware of an uneasy feeling owing to the wire around its waist. Neither have I any doubt that in addition to becoming uneasy it became seriously alarmed.

Being now unable either to disgorge or to get away, it tore off the whole section of netting, 6 feet by 8, and returned with the neck and waist band through the cabbage patch without any visible means of support, gave the alarm and then opened fire.

The prison guard rushed out and also opened fire, and very shortly our hero lay dead in his frame. He was skinned and his skin cured and dressed in the jail, where they are noted for this kind of work.—Forest and Stream.

STARTLED THE BISHOP.

An Untimely Royal Letter and the Message It Conveyed.

One night at 3 o'clock the bishop of Orleans was roused by a royal courier who had in hot haste brought a dispatch from his majesty Louis XV. The bishop imagined that something terrible had happened. Tremblingly he opened the package and read:

"Monsieur the Bishop of Orleans—My daughters wish for some preserved Orleans quinces. Pray send some. If you have none I beg that you will."

In this part of the letter there was a drawing of a sedan chair, and underneath the chair the king's letter continued thus:

"Send immediately into your episcopal town and get them, and, monsieur the bishop, may God have you in his holy keeping. Louis."

Lower down on the page was this postscript:

"The sedan chair does not mean anything. It was drawn by my daughter on this sheet of paper, which I happened to find near me."

Gently relieved, the bishop hurried a courier into Orleans, procured the preserves and sent them to his royal master—Thomas E. Watson in "The Story of France."

Value of New Ideas.

Some large business firms employ a man whose sole duty it is to read every trade journal, every technical paper or pamphlet and every magazine in order to get new ideas about the conduct of their business. Such information is laid each day before the heads of the various departments, who in turn pass it down the line to men under them and see that the new idea is tested. By this means each worker is kept in touch with what other men are doing in his particular line, and so his personal efficiency is increased. At most everything can be done in a manner a little better than the present way, and modern business demands to know and practice the best. Diogenes carried around a cup to drink water out of till one day he saw a dog lapping water with his tongue. He threw away his cup and afterward drank water out of the palm of his hand. He got from the dog a new idea.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Change of Name.

"Who can give a sentence using the word pendulum?" asked the teacher. Little Rachel's hand shot up. The teacher nodded encouragingly. "Lightning was invented by Benjamin Franklin."—Everybody's.

Stronger Than Sympathy.

"I am glad to see, anyhow, that you sympathize with the under dog in this barbarous fight." "Sympathize with 'im? Gosh, mister, all the money I've got is up on that dawg!"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Globe Trotters Plus.

A number of tourists were recently looking down the crater of Vesuvius. An American gentleman said to his companion:

"That looks a good deal like the infernal regions."

An English lady, overhearing the remark, said to another:

"Good gracious, how these Americans do travel!"—Lippincott's.

House-Renting and House-Selling Are Want Ad Tasks

They are such "usual tasks" for the want ads that it would be hard to find a rented house whose tenant did not find it through answering an ad—or an owned house whose purchase and sale did not originate in a classified ad.

If these facts are not significant to owners of property, no facts whatever would be.

The Forged Dispatch

MEMORIAL WEEK DRAMA

Film De Luxe No. 2 of the Imp Co., with grim war as an introduction, and the tenderness of Memorial Day memories as a close. Love and jealousy influence one man to effect a friend's disgrace as a coward. This is done by forging an order to retreat. The bursting of a shell kills the girl's brother, a drummer boy, but before he dies he picks up the forged dispatch and puts it in the pocket of his coat. Twenty years after the girl, still unmarried, gets this coat to wave out of the window as the veterans march by. The dispatch is found and the past is made clear. It is a film that will deeply stir emotions, and contains scenes that arouse the feelings of patriotism.

"With Sheridan at Murfreesboro."

CIVIL WAR DRAMA

This is a story of a great spiritual struggle. The son sides with the North, the father with the South. Later the father is a prisoner in the camp of the son, when a letter arrives telling of the probable fatal illness of the mother. The son bids the father go. For it he is court-martialed and sentenced to be shot. As in a vision, while at his wife's bedside, the father sees it all, and hastening back arrives in time to throw himself upon his son as the squad fires. Then the story is told to Gen. Sheridan. The son is restored to his rank and the father released on parole. The story is so clear that there should be a burst of applause at its end.

THE MICE AND THE CHORUS LADY

A scream from start to finish.

their victim. "We, Lady Barbara and myself, have watched you on several occasions. For the sake of your poor, unfortunate husband's name we have remained silent, but tonight was too much. First of all, you will return to us all you have won from poor little Laura tonight and also give back to us her I. O. U.'s. We insist."

After a feeble and frightened protest the money was handed over, and the pieces of paper signed by the little dupe were quickly placed on the red hot coals and burned to ashes.

"Now we will see that Laura receives the money which you fleeced her out of, and also we will guarantee that from us she will never learn the truth. No; you cannot go yet" (as the terrified little madam turned toward the door, "and it is useless your attempting to escape, for I have the key of the door. Painful as it is to us, we have determined to teach you a severe lesson. We are going to beat you. If you scream you may attract the attention of some other guests; if they come and demand an entrance they shall be admitted; if they inquire the reason of such drastic treatment we shall tell them the truth. I should advise you not to scream. Now, are you ready?" Without more ado our lady beld the wriggling, sobbing small person, while the other administered a sound and well deserved whipping.

The little lady did not desert the house party; her two chastisers were sweetly amiable to her for the remainder of the visit, and, to their delight and every one else's amazement, the cheat refused to play cards again during the remainder of her visit at that especial country house.—London Express.

Socially Launched.

In his native town Jimmy had always been most popular with young and old, but when he was sent away to boarding school he was for a time too homesick to make friends. His first letter was little more than a wail. "I'm away behind the other boys in everything," he wrote dolefully. "Tisn't only studies, but it's gymnastics and banjos and everything. I don't believe they'll ever have much use for me."

But the second letter, written after a week in the new school, was quite different in tone.

"I'm all right," he wrote to his mother. "The boys say they'll teach me all they know, for they're proud to have me here. I can stretch my mouth half an inch wider than any other boy in the school, and my feet are the longest by a full inch. So you needn't worry about me any more."—Youth's Companion.

Circus Season Is Here.

A Legend of Lace.

According to Melchior de Vogue, the legend of lace is as follows: A Venetian sailor gave his ladylove a frond of spreading seaweed to keep him in memory while at sea. But the girl found that the seaweed was rapidly drying up and disappearing. So she caught the fine branches and leaves of the plant with thread against a piece of linen and, working on, with her thoughts following her lover, invented lace.

A Bridge of Ants.

A species of ants which spin silk is common in hot countries. The ants nest in trees, binding the leaves together to make their nests. The silk used for this purpose is not secreted by the adult ants, but by the larvae. In order to attach the silken threads and draw the leaves together the ants must carry the larvae about from leaf to leaf. When two distant leaves are to be drawn together a remarkable method is employed. Five or six ants form a chain bridging the gap between the leaves, each gripping the waist of another in its mandibles. A number of such chains will co-operate in bringing two leaves together.

It Was His Own.

Shirley Brooks, the famous Punch editor, once met Charles Salamar, the composer. On being introduced to Shirley the composer said: "I had often and often seen your face, Mr. Brooks, but I never knew to whom it belonged." "Oh," replied Brooks quickly, "it always belonged to me."

UNCLE SAM WILL PLAY AUCTIONEER; QUEER BARGAINS

Whole Room Full of "Dead Men's" Things to Be Sold.

WASHINGTON, (Special) — Secretary of the Treasury McVeagh has just ordered what will probably be the most unusual auction sale ever held in the United States.

The general public will be invited to bid on a room-full of valuables, the unclaimed property of Americans who died abroad alone and so far as known, friendless.

The property came from every quarter of the globe, whence U. S. consuls forwarded it to the State Department. The government has been unable to find the heirs, and so, the unclaimed personal estates, some of them worth thousands of dollars, have for years lain in a huge vault in the office of the "Auditor of the State and Other Departments."

Almost every variety of small article is represented in the heterogeneous lot which is to be auctioned off. There are pen-knives with broken blades, and cavalry sabers.

There are cheap brass rings, and there are rings set with diamonds and rubies, bracelets studded with gems, and diamond solitaire earrings. One little package contains a watch, the case of which is made of iron.

Another contains two watches with solid gold cases, and works of the finest make. There are also many packages of money from every known country. One of the packages to be sold contains five $100 Government bonds.

Another contains nine confederate ten dollar bills, and a $1000 bond issued by the government of "Jeff" Davis. Any number of packages contain property deeds and negotiable, interest-bearing notes, long overdue, but which the government in its self constituted capacity of custodian, has had no power to collect.

All these "estates" will go, package by package, to the highest bidder, and those who have no squeamishness about buying "dead" men's things may pick up some rare bargains.

The government has long hesitated to sell its rather gawky collection but has finally been forced to, because according to a Treasury official, "the stuff is piling up too fast, and we need the room."

The proceeds of the strange sale will be deposited in the Treasury to await claimants which are never expected to appear.

Told the Truth.

Dangers Come from Within

THERE are many good people who think that a girl is going out into a wicked, wicked world, into a world beset with dangers and temptations when she enters the business life; that there are divers pitfalls and snares waiting especially for her to fall into, and once she is in she is there to stay.

And there are dangers, plenty of them. But the majority come from the girl herself rather than from the wicked, wicked world.

One of these dangers is bitterness of soul; another hardness of heart and cynicism and the resultant lack of joy and sweetness; still another is the danger of not storing the mind with knowledge and culture, which will broaden the horizon.

And so on down the list of dangers which the girl who goes out into the world to earn her living may encounter, and, as you will readily see, all these dangers come rather from within than from without.

All of us have troubles, but we all have a share of egotism also, and this comes to the surface always, and especially when our hearts are heavy, for we are likely to think that our little pile of troubles is much larger than any other little pile that any one else has to bear.

By this system of overrating our own, and underrating every one else's troubles the bitterness of soul comes.

Have you ever heard a girl say with a strained look in her eyes, "I wish some one would tell me what I was born for. Ever since I can remember the path has been dark before me and each succeeding year has brought with it more and more of the burdens of life?"

Maybe she didn't say it in just those words, but she meant that she had more than her share of the trouble of the world.

The hardness of heart and cynicism come from the same source—egotism in trouble. The bookkeeper sees the "boss" take the pretty little stenographer out to lunch and she curls her lips and makes her eyes hard and glittering as she says, "All men are alike."

But she doesn't know. How can she, since she has not met one one-millionth of the men in the world and why should she let two or three disappointments of a like character disturb her sweetness of mind and belief in men?

Not that I advise a girl to believe every sweet word and smiling glance thrown her way by the male contingent. Not a bit of it. For men are always gay deceivers. But if she keeps her poise and takes these little glances and words for what they are worth she will get through life with a pretty sound belief in all things human.

The danger of not storing the mind with the knowledge and culture which she may receive from books and people is, I think, the most common of the long list of dangers which the girl may strew in her own path.

It may seem rather cold-blooded to tell a girl who has been hard at work all day to pick up a classic on her return home and spend the evening digesting it.

But once a girl gets into the habit of reading books that are worth while, books which are the minds of famous men, poems which give one higher ideals, and books of knowledge, history and biography, she will find more pleasure in them than the cheap theaters or the harmful novels which give her a distorted view of life.

If the girl keeps her mind clean, her ideals on their pedestals, and opens her eyes to the beauty in the world, the office or store will hold no dangers for her, but she will gain a broader view of life, a deeper knowledge of things, by battling with the adverse currents of earning her living in the world.

LATE INVENTIONS

A method for treating a photographic negative to produce the effect of stereoscopic relief in the picture has been invented by two Frenchmen.

A combined display stand and writing desk, which can be folded into a compact sample case for a traveling salesman, has been invented by an Ohio man.

BOOKS OFTEN EXERT STRONG INFLUENCE

Children Not Only Ones
Injured By Lurid
Literature.

WHAT sort of books do you read, and what influence do they exert upon you? A very leading question, isn't it, and one which the majority of women can only answer vaguely, for their reading is more often brought about by the chance comments of a friend than by any set purpose of delving into good literature.

And yet in the news of the past few weeks, where women have figured in crimes, or tragedies, or comedies, books have proved to be the main factors in each case. For, after all, it is not only the girls and boys who are influenced by lurid literature any more than it is always the young folk who give way to impulse.

Out in the west there is a young wife facing a divorce suit because, she says, she tried to emulate a wife in a book who won her husband's admiration and love by flirting with other men, and by insisting upon his perfect faith in her and refusing to answer any questions.

"Down east," there is a young woman on trial for shoplifting because she wanted to "see for herself" if the horrors of it would be such as she had read of.

With the appearance of a novel about art and artists a few weeks ago 50,000 girls stormed the studios of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, seeking positions as models, while romantic reading lies back of the divorce suits of two young women who eloped with men they knew little about because they had been inculcated with the theory of "love at first sight" in a series of novels.

"But all this doesn't affect me," you say. On the contrary all this affects every woman in so much that it reveals the influence which books exert on their readers no matter how unconscious the latter are of the subtle thoughts which creep into their brains and remain there.

We may disguise our reasons for reading books with the trite declaration that we want to know all about all phases of life, or we may say that our work requires the relaxation of very light literature in the evenings, or we gloss it all over by declaring that it is necessary to read books that are talked about to keep up-to-date, but once we have read them we have added one more little factor in the never ceasing battle of determination to do the big things of life versus inclination and impulse.

Books offer such alluring pictures of life, even its most wretched sides, and it is so human to be eager to play the role of a heroine in life as the girl you fancy you are like plays it in the book, that it is no wonder that women succumb. It's after all just a grown-up way of playing at "make believe," isn't it? And even though you do it only in your own mind, it is bound to exert an influence upon you in everyday life.

So don't read a book just because somebody whispers to you that "Of course it's a frightful book, but, my dear, its revelations of life are, etc., etc."

And don't read a book because there is a hue and cry against it, or for any reason except that you feel that the story to be read will bring something worth while into your life.

Prudence in literature is foolish—let us all admit it—but if you exercise such great care over the books which fall into the hands of your sons and daughters, why not exercise a similar, even if less rigid, censorship over the books you read yourself and beware of the influence that lies under their veil-written phrases?

And, after all, there are so many new books that are amusing and clean and delightful, and so many, many old books whose treasures are ever new, that it hardly seems worth while to read the ones that are evil.

Be a Good Loser

BE a good loser! If there's any one bit of advice into which is compressed the whole gist of manliness, it is that.

When you sit down to a game of cards, or of chess, or of dominoes, in order really to enjoy yourself you want to resolve two things—first, to look pleasant, act pleasant, and as near as human frailty will permit, to feel pleasant, if you should lose.

And the game of life and love and business needs about the same attitude of mind. Go in to win! Get to the head of the class; sell more goods than any other salesman; make more money than any of your relations; marry the girl you want! A determination to do these things will give you vim and snap. Every man's banner should bear the device "Excelsior."

But—And right here is where one needs to call up the reserve moral forces. Suppose you don't win? This, and so say, happens usually to mortal men. Suppose the girl you want does not happen to want you; and suppose that, after you've done your best, Smith and Robinson come out ahead in selling goods, or that after studying in still you've sprung your skull, you find the pale little boy has got better marks than you at school?

Right at this point, I say, is where one sees the stuff that's in you. You are discovered. If you sulk and are sore, if you begin to give reasons why you really were the one that should have succeeded, if you decry the winner, why, you are small. That's all—just petty and mean. But if you bob up smiling, bear no malice, with the best man luck, and don't pout, then, ten to one, you are a better man than the victor.

You have heard how nothing succeeds like success, and how the world loves a winner, and how a successful man finds everybody ready to help him to further triumphs, and it's all true enough; but there's something truer and not so generally known, and that is that the world loves a good loser.

Look about you among your acquaintances and note the ones that are the most popular and the ones you yourself like best. They are, I venture to say, not the fellows who are luckiest nor cleverest nor most capable, nor those who draw the most pay, but they are the boys that don't get grouchy, those that lose and keep good-natured, those who when they fall get up and brush off the dust and go at it again as jolly as ever and don't lie in the mud and whine.

The language of the street has a word which compresses all this feeling into one syllable—"sport." When President Roosevelt told the boys in Cheyenne that he liked western men because they were good sports he meant just what I am trying to express here. Sport, like some other words, has room for a lot of meanings; it may signify a profligate, a drunkard, and a spendthrift, just as the word love in some base mouths may stand for shameful things; but, rightly understood, a "sport" is just a real man—a man who can take defeat and not get soured.

But some one may say: "O, I can stand a licking all right, and I don't mind losing out if it's a square deal. But what makes me hot is injustice. When some miserable shrimp that doesn't know beans is promoted over me I can't help being disgusted. When trickery and toadying and little meanness sneak in and carry away the prize from fellows who are straight and honest, then is when I grow warm under the collar."

But why? You don't understand. That is not the time to swear. That's the time to smile. Life would not be funny if virtue were always rewarded at once. To see the jackdaw with peacock feathers stuck in his tail, to see the peanut thinking he's a cocoanut, to see the frog swelling up till he thinks he is the size of a cow—all this is the comedy of existence. It is to laugh.

You'd just as well be a philosopher. You feel much better, and certainly those around you feel much better, than if you fume and fret.

There was a heap of sense in the man in the story, who was attacked without reason by a drunken Irishman, who knocked him down and rolled him into the ditch, exclaiming: "There! Lay there, ye dom Swede." The man arose laughing. As the Irishman passed on, wondering and muttering, the man still laughed. Some one who had seen it all asked him what he was laughing about.

"That was a good yoke on that fellow," said the man. "I thought I bin a Swede—and I bin Norwegian!"

As far back as Solomon men who understood knew that the worst thing that can happen a bad man, a cheat, a sneak, or a rogue is to succeed. Solomon wrote it down in his book: "The prosperity of fools shall slay them. They shall eat of the fruit of their own way and be filled with their own devices."

It is well to remember that the end of every hog is the slaughter house. Sooner or later the butcher gets him.

The worst kind of an infidel is the man who loses his belief in the value of being straight, clean, true, and kind. You may doubt the New Jerusalem and the bad place, you may be a skeptic about Gabriel and Jonah and Mrs. Eddy and Our Lady of Lourdes, and possibly you may worry along and be a tolerably decent sort of man; but if you fall into a belief in the omnipotence of skulduggery, chicanery, and bluster, you're sure in a bad way.

Put away all this manner of talk. It's bad. It's worse than bad, it's weak. There's no use being honest; it's the smooth rascal that gets there. If you want to get on in this world you must bluff. The fellows who do good work are not those who get the plums; it's the fellows who hand out the con. Life's a confidence game. The bunko man is king."

In a sense there's some truth in that. But success is not everything. A man has his life to live. He has to keep a face that he is not ashamed to look at in the glass while he is shaving. He has to keep a mind and a memory that will let him sleep. He has to keep a mouth fit to kiss his wife with. And, most important of all, he has to keep eyes that are not afraid to look into the eyes of his children.

And, more than that, he wants to feel glad while he's doing it. The half of honesty is lost if it doesn't make you feel good. If the triumph of the fraud and the scamp can put you in the dumps, there's something the matter with your nature; it is to be feared, if you envy rogues, that you are part rogue yourself.

After all, the only persons who really enjoy living are the "good sports," using the term in the sense of good losers. With them it's heads I win, tails you lose. For if they win they're jolly, of course; and if they lose, at least they don't lose their good nature.

RENOVATING GOWNS OF LAST SUMMER

Is Not Difficult to Make
Last Season's Frocks
Look Fresh and Dainty

OUT from the cedar chests and the camphor bags are coming the frocks of yesterday, and the maids and matrons who make their own clothes are frowning with sighing over the question of how to freshen up those same dresses to wear when the warm weather brings its long sunny days and warm evenings.

Yet it is not really a difficult matter, for the fashions of the season offer many opportunities for renovating last year's gowns.

For instance, a little flannel frock or a pongee gown that looks a little old fashioned may be cut to a deep point in front and black satin revers and cuffs added and a band of black satin introduced into the skirt, making an entirely new and very smart costume.

Over the foulard gowns of last year a tunic of chiffon may be draped, while a princess frock may be changed entirely by adding one of the new boleros of satin and chiffon, with touches of the same down the left side of the skirt.

Still another novel touch of the year is the apron like panel of embroidery running from between the shoulders almost to the hem of the skirt back and front, with a square sailor collar and cuffs to match, which so completely changes a last year's gown that not even its owner will recognize it.

If the blouse to a summer frock has old-fashioned sleeves, rip them out and cut the top off the blouse, cutting new bordered materials, then put a band to match on the skirt and you will have a whole new costume at the cost of a few cents.

As often as possible introduce a touch of black into the gowns and do not have too pronounced a hobble to the skirts, as these are—according to fashion's decree—"going out."

UNCLE SAM WILL PLAY AUCTIONEER; QUEER BARGAINS

Whole Room Full of "Dead Men's" Things to Be Sold.

WASHINGTON, (Special) — Secretary of the Treasury McVeagh has just ordered what will probably be the most unusual auction sale ever held in the United States.

The general public will be invited to bid on a room-full of valuables, the unclaimed property of Americans who died abroad alone and so far as known, friendless.

The property came from every quarter of the globe, whence U. S. consuls forwarded it to the State Department. The government has been unable to find the heirs, and so, the unclaimed personal estates, some of them worth thousands of dollars, have for years lain in a huge vault in the office of the "Auditor of the State and Other Departments."

Almost every variety of small article is represented in the heterogeneous lot which is to be auctioned off. There are pen-knives with broken blades, and cavalry sabers.

There are cheap brass rings, and there are rings set with diamonds and rubies, bracelets studded with gems, and diamond solitaire earrings. One little package contains a watch, the case of which is made of iron.

Another contains two watches with solid gold cases, and works of the finest make. There are also many packages of money from every known country. One of the packages to be sold contains five $100 Government bonds.

Another contains nine confederate ten dollar bills, and a $1000 bond issued by the government of "Jeff" Davis. Any number of packages contain property deeds and negotiable, interest-bearing notes, long overdue, but which the government in its self constituted capacity of custodian, has had no power to collect.

All these "estates" will go, package by package, to the highest bidder, and those who have no squeamishness about buying "dead" men's things" may pick up some rare bargains.

The government has long hesitated to sell its rather gawsome collection but has finally been forced to, because according to a Treasury official, "the stuff is piling up too fast, and we need the room."

The proceeds of the strange sale will be deposited in the Treasury to await claimants which are never expected to appear.

Dangers Come from Within

THERE are many good people who think that a girl is going out into a wicked, wicked world, into a world beset with dangers and temptations when she enters the business life; that there are divers pitfalls and snares waiting especially for her to fall into, and once she is in she is there to stay.

And there are dangers, plenty of them. But the majority come from the girl herself rather than from the wicked, wicked world.

One of these dangers is bitterness of soul; another hardness of heart and cynicism and the resultant lack of joy and sweetness; still another is the danger of not storing the mind with knowledge and culture, which will broaden the horizon.

And so on down the list of dangers which the girl who goes out into the world to earn her living may encounter, and, as you will readily see, all these dangers come rather from within than from without.

All of us have troubles, but we all have a share of egotism also, and this comes to the surface always, and especially when our hearts are heavy, for we are likely to think that our little pile of troubles is much larger than any other little pile that any one else has to bear.

By this system of overrating our own, and underrating every one else's troubles the bitterness of soul comes.

Have you ever heard a girl say with a strained look in her eyes, "I wish some one would tell me what I was born for. Ever since I can remember the path has been dark before me and each succeeding year has brought with it more and more of the burdens of life?"

Maybe she didn't say it in just those words, but she meant that she had more than her share of the trouble of the world.

The hardness of heart and cynicism come from the same source—egotism in trouble. The bookkeeper sees the "boss" take the pretty little stenographer out to lunch and she curls her lips and makes her eyes hard and glittering as she says, "All men are alike."

But she doesn't know. How can she, since she has not met one one-millionth of the men in the world and why should she let two or three disappointments of a like character disturb her sweetness of mind and belief in men?

Not that I advise a girl to believe every sweet word and smiling glance thrown her way by the male contingent. Not a bit of it. For men are always gay deceivers. But if she keeps her poise and takes these little glances and words for what they are worth she will get through life with a pretty sound belief in all things human.

The danger of not storing the mind with the knowledge and culture which she may receive from books and people is, I think, the most common of the long list of dangers which the girl may strew in her own path.

It may seem rather cold-blooded to tell a girl who has been hard at work all day to pick up a classic on her return home and spend the evening digesting it.

But once a girl gets into the habit of reading books that are worth while, books which are the minds of famous men, poems which give one higher ideals, and books of knowledge, history and biography, she will find more pleasure in them than the cheap theaters or the harmful novels which give her a distorted view of life.

If the girl keeps her mind clean, her ideals on their pedestals, and opens her eyes to the beauty in the world, the office or store will hold no dangers for her, but she will gain a broader view of life, a deeper knowledge of things, by battling with the adverse currents of earning her living in the world.

BOOKS OFTEN EXERT STRONG INFLUENCE

Children Not Only Ones Injured By Lurid Literature.

WHAT sort of books do you read, and what influence do they exert upon you? A very leading question, isn't it, and one which the majority of women can only answer vaguely, for their reading is more often brought about by the chance comments of a friend than by any set purpose of delving into good literature.

And yet in the news of the past few weeks, where women have figured in crimes, or tragedies, or comedies, books have proved to be the main factors in each case. For, after all, it is not only the girls and boys who are influenced by lurid literature any more than it is always the young folk who give way to impulse.

Out in the west there is a young wife facing a divorce suit because, she says, she tried to emulate a wife in a book who won her husband's admiration and love by flirting with other men, and by insisting upon his perfect faith in her and refusing to answer any questions.

"Down east," there is a young woman on trial for shoplifting because she wanted to "see for herself" if the horrors of it would be such as she had read of.

With the appearance of a novel about art and artists a few weeks ago 50,000 girls stormed the studios of New York, Philadelphia and Chicago, seeking positions as models, while romantic reading lies back of the divorce suits of two young women who eloped with men they knew little about because they had been inculcated with the theory of "love at first sight" in a series of novels.

"But all this doesn't affect me," you say. On the contrary all this affects every woman in so much that it reveals the influence which books exert on their readers no matter how unconscious the latter are of the subtle thoughts which creep into their brains and remain there.

We may disguise our reasons for reading books with the trite declaration that we want to know all about all phases of life, or we may say that our work requires the relaxation of very light literature in the evenings, or we gloss it all over by declaring that it is necessary to read books that are talked about to keep up-to-date, but once we have read them we have added one more little factor in the never ceasing battle of determination to do the big things of life versus inclination and impulse.

Books offer such alluring pictures of life, even its most wretched sides, and it is so human to be eager to play the role of a heroine in life as the girl you fancy you are like plays it in the book, that it is no wonder that woman succumb. It's after all just a grown-up way of playing at "make believe." Isn't it? And even though you do it only in your own mind, it is bound to exert an influence upon you in a everyday life.

So don't read a book just because somebody whispers to you that "Of course it's a frightful book, but, my dear, its revelations of life are, etc., etc."

And don't read a book because there is a hue and cry against it, or for any reason except that you feel that the story to be read will bring something worth while into your life.

Prudence in literature is foolish—let us all admit it—but if you exercise such great care over the books which fall into the hands of your sons and daughters, why not exercise a similar, even if less rigid, censorship over the books you read yourself and beware of the influence that lies under their veil-written phrases?

And, after all, there are so many new books that are amusing and clean and delightful, and so many "old" books whose treasures are ever new, that it hardly seems worth while to read the ones that are evil.
